

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Education

350 Main Street, Malden, Massachusetts 02148-5023 • (781) 388-3300

David P. Driscoll
Commissioner of Education (Interim)

To: Members of the Board of Education
From: David P. Driscoll, Commissioner of Education (Interim)
Re: Chapter 276 of the Acts of 1998
Date: January 15, 1999

Enclosed for Board review is a draft copy of the Massachusetts Guide to Choosing and Using Curricular Materials on Genocide and Human Rights. This Guide was completed in accordance with Chapter 276 of the Acts of 1998 which was signed into law on August 10, 1998. The text of the law is as follows:

Chapter 276 of the Acts of 1998

An Act Requiring Certain Instructions in the Public Schools of the Commonwealth.

The board of education shall formulate recommendations on curricular materials on genocide and human rights issues, and guidelines for the teaching of such material. Said material and guidelines may include, but shall not be limited to, the period of the transatlantic slave trade and the middle passage, the great hunger period in Ireland, the Armenian genocide, the holocaust and the Mussolini fascist regime and other recognized human rights violations and genocides. In formulating these recommendations, the board shall consult with practicing teachers, principals, superintendents, and curricular coordinators in the commonwealth, as well as experts knowledgeable in genocide and human rights issues. Said recommendations shall be available to all school districts in the commonwealth on an advisory basis, and shall be filed with the clerk of the house of representatives, the clerk of the senate, and the house and senate chairmen of the joint committee on education, arts, and humanities not later than March 1, 1999.

The Guide will be used in conjunction with the Massachusetts curriculum frameworks, in particular those for History and Social Science and English Language Arts. Excerpts from these frameworks appear throughout the document.

The Guide was developed by a Department team which included several sabbatical teachers on leave to the Department. The team benefited from the advice and materials provided by experts in the field, including individuals from higher education and private organizations, during and subsequent to two meetings convened by State Senator Steven A. Tolman, one of the sponsors of the Act last year.

We will welcome the Board's comments on the Guide at the January 26 meeting, and we will solicit additional comments from the Board and others through February 9. Based on the comments, we will revise the Guide as needed and present it to you in final form at the February 23, 1999 Board meeting. In order for us to meet the March 1, 1999 deadline in the law, the Guide should be approved by the Board at the February meeting.

Upon the Board's approval, we will send the Guide to the Legislature by March 1 and then prepare it for distribution to the Commonwealth's schools later in the Spring.

Massachusetts
Guide to Choosing and Using Curricular Materials
on Genocide and Human Rights Issues

Massachusetts Department of Education

Draft
January 15, 1999

This Guide to Choosing and Using Curricular Materials on Genocide and Human Rights Issues offers recommendations for locating and selecting curriculum materials on genocide and human rights issues, and guidelines for the teaching of such materials. It is to be used in conjunction with the Massachusetts Curriculum Frameworks, in particular those for History and Social Science and English Language Arts, both published in 1997. Excerpts from those frameworks appear throughout this Guide; the full text of each framework is available on the Massachusetts Department of Education's website, <http://www.doe.mass.edu/>.

Particular genocide and human rights issues are explicitly listed as areas for study in the History and Social Science Framework, which presents "academic content and skills in the four areas of History, Geography, Economics, and Civics and Government that are essential to the study of human experience past and present, and to the development of educated and responsible citizens." Academic content pertinent to these issues is excerpted in this Guide, beginning on page 9. Background information on human rights issues and genocides begins on page 38.

Background: The Education Reform Act of 1993

Since the passage of the Education Reform Act of 1993, the Massachusetts Board and Department of Education, with the assistance of teachers, administrators, and scholars, have produced curriculum frameworks in the Arts, English Language Arts, Foreign Languages, Health, History and Social Science, Mathematics, and Science and Technology. These frameworks are guides for the development of coherent and sequential programs of curriculum, instruction, and assessments in public elementary, middle, and high schools, and Adult Basic Education programs.

All of the frameworks are organized in the same way. Each presents a Core Concept and Guiding Principles for the organization of effective academic programs, followed by Strands and Learning Standards that specify what students should know and be able to do at various grade levels. In addition, the History and Social Science Framework includes a Core Knowledge section. Chronologically organized, this section presents the core of major topics in world and United States history. The Core Knowledge topics are elaborated in greater detail in a section called Commonly Taught Subtopics.

The curriculum frameworks are the basis for the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System (MCAS), a mandated annual statewide testing program for students in the Commonwealth's public elementary, middle, and high schools. Information on this testing program, including released questions and data on student performance, is available on the Massachusetts Department of Education's website, <http://www.doe.mass.edu/>.

Teaching about Genocide and Human Rights Issues: Guiding Principles selected from the Massachusetts Curriculum Frameworks

Curriculum, instruction, and classroom assessment about genocide and human rights issues should be based on factual content aligned with the material in the Massachusetts Curriculum Frameworks. These issues need to be integrated into a sequential PreK-12 academic program, planned collaboratively by teachers from elementary, middle and high schools in each district. In the interest of helping teachers incorporate this material into their work with students, this Guide quotes six Guiding Principles, three from the History and Social Science Framework, and three from the English Language Arts Framework. The text beneath the Principles explains why these are particularly pertinent to the teaching of genocide and human rights issues.

History and Social Science: Guiding Principle 4

An effective history and social science curriculum recognizes each person as an individual, encourages respect for the human and civil rights of all people, and also emphasizes students' shared heritage as citizens, residents, and future citizens of the United States.

In the study of genocide and human rights issues, students and their teachers confront some of the most difficult and dreadful aspects of human behavior: hatred, prejudice, cruelty, suffering, legalized discrimination, and mass murder. The study of episodes such as the Armenian Genocide and the Holocaust often causes students and teachers to question why such atrocities occurred, whether they could occur elsewhere, and how they might be prevented. Through a balanced study of history's repeated incidents of human rights violations, students learn about questions of ethics, political and religious philosophies regarding human rights, the importance of personal responsibility, and the role of the individual in creating and sustaining democratic institutions.

Students should learn about the role of governments and international organizations in setting standards for human rights, and about the barriers to enforcing human rights legislation and voluntary compacts. Appendices A, B, C, and D present excerpts from some important documents that were written for the purpose of preserving and protecting human rights, and which are part of students' "shared heritage." Included here are selections from the United States Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, Bill of Rights and subsequent Amendments dealing with human rights; the United Nations Declaration of Universal Human Rights, the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child, and the United Nations Convention on Genocide.

History and Social Science: Guiding Principle 5

An effective curriculum in history and social science draws on and integrates several disciplines and fields of study.

As students encounter events that involve human rights issues in the history curriculum, they should be taught to examine these complex issues using a variety of critical lenses and methods. They should develop the skills that will enable them to frame series of questions, such as how philosophies may have affected governmental decisions, how economic forces may have shaped consequences, and how factors of geography may have contributed to events. For example, in researching the causes and consequences of the Irish Hunger Period, students might examine the geography and natural resources of Ireland, political relations and trade between Ireland and Britain, the impact of social and economic philosophies of the period, and ways in which massive Irish emigration affected the culture and economy of the United States in the 19th century.

History and Social Science: Guiding Principle 6

The historical narrative should provide the continuous setting for learning in social science, as well as the frame of reference from which teachers choose the current events and public policy issues for student study, presentations, and classroom discussion.

The History and Social Science Framework recommends a chronological approach to the teaching of history, and encourages teachers to help students make conceptual connections by selecting significant topics from current events that relate to past events. For example, knowledge of the specific historical circumstances of the transatlantic slave trade can help students understand the consequences of slavery as a social institution, and the importance of the ongoing movements for human and civil rights in the United States and other countries around the world. Teachers need to make sure that human rights issues are taught within a logical historical sequence, rather than as isolated events. Appendix E gives background on some of the genocide and human rights events specified in Chapter 276, and places them within the recommended scope and sequence for a PreK-12 history and social science curriculum.

English Language Arts: Guiding Principle 3

An effective English language arts curriculum draws on literature from many genres, time periods, and cultures, featuring works that reflect our common literary heritage.

Students' understanding of human responses to genocide and human rights issues is deepened through their reading of literature, and their exposure to other works of art that express feelings and ideas about the human condition and the human spirit. The English Language Arts Framework includes a list of recommended authors who have written eloquently about their own experiences, about instances of oppression, and about attempts to create a more just society. Among these are Anne Frank, Elie Wiesel, Alexander Solzhenitsyn, Seamus Heaney, Derek Walcott, Frederick Douglass, Martin Luther King, Jr., Maya Angelou, and William Saroyan.

English Language Arts: Guiding Principle 7

An effective English language arts curriculum teaches the strategies necessary for acquiring academic knowledge, achieving common academic standards, and attaining independence in learning.

Students need to develop a repertoire of learning strategies for reading, research, and writing that they consciously practice and apply in increasingly demanding contexts. These skills and strategies are of particular use when students and their teachers deal with complex issues that call for close evaluation, critical thinking, and analysis. Curriculum units dealing with genocide and human rights issues should include opportunities for students to develop, clarify, and communicate their ideas in writing, discussion, and oral or media presentations.

English Language Arts: Guiding Principle 10

While encouraging respect for differences in home backgrounds, an effective English language arts curriculum nurtures students' sense of their common ground in order to prepare them for responsible participation in our schools and civic life.

Massachusetts public schools educate students of diverse racial, ethnic, and religious groups. Taking advantage of this diversity, teachers carefully choose literature and guide discussions about the variety of peoples around the world and their different beliefs, stories, and traditions. At the same time, they help students discover common ground in humanitarian issues.

Scope, Sequence, and Developmental Considerations

The History and Social Science curriculum framework, pages 51 and 52, lists the required studies across grade spans. The sequence of instruction indicated calls for introductory level instruction at the PreK-4 grade span, and more sophisticated and detailed learning as students move up through the middle and high school grades. The content, and the sequence of these topics within a grade span, must be the result of ongoing discussions and collaboration among teachers across the elementary, middle, and high school grades.

The Elementary Grades, PreK—4. Elementary education in history, social science and the humanities is introductory in nature and should be integrated with reading, writing, listening, and speaking. Elementary teachers instruct mainly in self-contained classrooms, and are responsible for teaching several core subjects. The importance of interdisciplinary curriculum construction is paramount. The role of the elementary classroom experience in the study of history and social science is directly addressed in Section VII of the framework, History and Social Science in Kindergarten and Elementary Grades, on pages 55-58:

Research findings corroborate the Framework expectation that young children can absorb and use engaging history content in their thinking and learning...History instruction in the lower grades has a distinct elementary form dictated both by considerations of children's developmental levels and by considerations of where and how study and learning in history begins...The basic work of the primary grades in history is devoted to hearing and reading about what happened in the course of human history and why, who was involved, and why they thought and acted so...Within [the study of the historical] narrative are the geographical and economic shaping forces and chosen effects in civics.

In their introductory historical studies of exploration and the immigration of individuals and family groups to and within the United States, children at this grade level can be introduced to the topic of cross-cultural encounters, such as those among Native Americans, Europeans, and Africans. As part of their family histories, children of all races and ethnicities may have personal stories about how parents, grandparents, other relatives or friends moved to escape oppression. Because of developmental and maturation concerns, more complex details and discussions about genocide and human rights issues are reserved for the older middle and high school students. Nevertheless, there are age-appropriate materials and resources designed to teach elementary-aged children historically significant information about issues such as slavery through fictional and nonfictional literature, oral stories, and visual material.

The Civics and Government Learning Standards provide opportunities for young children to engage in studying and learning about authority, responsibility, and the rights all humans share. Ideas such as how to give consideration to others, fairness, self-control and patience with oneself and others are introduced in Learning Standard 19. Young children can also be introduced to founding documents of the United States (see Appendix A) and to the concept of children's rights (see Appendix C).

The Middle School Grades, 5 - 8.

Beginning at this level, it is important that historical topics be taught chronologically. The topics that align with the scope and sequence for this grade span are U.S. History from the origins of the nation to 1880; and World History from the origins of mankind to 700 A.D. (See the Core Knowledge Section of this document, beginning on page 10, for specific topics related to genocide and human rights.) There have been many debates over whether it is appropriate for students of middle school age to engage in the serious study of topics such as genocide. Much of this debate focuses on the level of detail that should be introduced and the level of sophistication these students possess. Most middle school students are developmentally ready for more complex detail about difficult topics, and can apply concepts such as theories of causation, patterns, change and continuity more readily than younger children can. Generally, it is agreed that students in the eighth grade and above are ready to engage in reading, research, reflection, and discussion of this material.

The High School Grades, 9 -12

The scope and sequence of content for grades nine and ten is World History from 500 A.D. to the present. The eleventh and twelfth grades return to U.S. History from 1865 to the present and History and Social Science electives. Older high school students can engage in meaningful study and discussion of topics such as genocide and human rights violations. Caution should be used in choosing materials, and in the methods employed in teaching with these materials, at all grade levels. The nature of these topics brings with it the possibility of misunderstanding or cynicism. These are often unexpected and unintended responses of human nature when people are exposed to powerful material that reveals the paradoxes of human behavior, especially when that behavior has resulted in genocide, slavery, forced famines, and other violations of human rights in historical and contemporary times. Teachers and students alike benefit from the assistance and expertise of individuals and organizations skilled and experienced in the access and delivery of this difficult material. A list of such organizations begins on page 23.

Academic Content: References to Genocide and Human Rights Issues in the History and Social Science Framework

Core Knowledge

The Core Knowledge section of the History and Social Science Framework presents the major topics in United States and World History, Geography, Economics, and Civics and Government. The Commonly Taught Subtopics section suggests specific events, issues, ideas, and historical figures for study.

For this Guide, selections from Core Knowledge and Commonly Taught Subtopics that pertain to the study of genocide, the Holocaust, and other human and civil rights issues have been combined. Core Knowledge eras and main topics are labeled by numbers and letters (following the outline format of the History and Social Science Framework); subtopics are bulleted. Because this is a selected list, there will appear to be gaps in the outlined sections below; for example, the topics under “1. Early Americas and Americans (Beginnings to 1650)” begin with “d. African geography, societies, politics....” because topics a. b., and c. are not related to the issues in this Guide.

Learning Standards

All of the twenty learning standards from the History and Social Science Framework are included in this Guide, because all can be used to plan curriculum on genocide and human rights issues. They identify what students should know and be able to do across the grade spans (PreK–4; 5-8; 9-10; and 11-12).

The History and Social Science Learning Standards have been designed with three purposes in mind:

- to acknowledge the importance of content in the History and Social Science disciplines, and the skills, strategies, and other learning processes students need in order to learn;
- to help teachers create classroom curriculum and assessments; and
- to serve as the basis for a statewide assessment of student learning.

United States History
Selections from Core Knowledge and Commonly Taught Subtopics
Relating to Genocide and Human Rights

From the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework, pages 13-15, 24-39

1. Early America and Americans (Beginnings to 1650)

- d. African geography, societies, politics; backgrounds of the slave trade
 - 15th century Portuguese enter African-Muslim slave trade
- e. First encounters between Americans and Europeans; the consequences
 - Native American societies destabilized by epidemic and European conquest; weaker groups and cultures perish in wars with stronger native groups

2. Settlements, Colonies, and Emerging American Identity (1600 to 1763)

- b. Coexistence and conflict between Europeans and Native Americans
 - Advances into Indian habitats and hunting grounds; rising hostility
 - Pequot War 1637; King Philip's War 1675; exchange of massacres
- d. Colonial era labor and the advent of North American slavery
 - By mid-17th century, hereditary slavery of Africans established in Virginia
 - The Atlantic slave trade; the "middle passage"
 - Limited use of slaves in northern colonies

3. The American Revolution: Creating a New Nation (1750 to 1815)

- b. First Battles in Massachusetts; the Declaration of Independence
 - The Declaration's principles "heard round the world," inspiring the quest for freedom and justice in America and elsewhere down to the present
- e. Founding Documents and debates
 - The United States Constitution; the Philadelphia Convention of 1787; James Madison, "Father of the Constitution"

4. Expansion, Reform, and Economic Growth (1800 to 1861)

- d. The Southern economic system: land, agriculture, slavery, trade
 - Slave labor enriches some Southern landowners
- e. Jacksonian Democracy and Pre-Civil War reform, women's rights, and schooling
 - Garrison's The Liberator, 1831; Harriet Beecher Stowe, Uncle Tom's Cabin, 1852
 - Frederick Douglass' Narrative, 1845; the Underground Railroad; Harriet Tubman
 - Women's rights proclaimed; Declaration of Sentiments, Seneca Falls, 1848: "all men and women are created equal"
- g. New immigrants; migration patterns; nativist hostility
 - Irish famine, German revolutions, poverty in England spur waves of newcomers
 - Nativist hostility found in all socio-economic classes
 - Labor movement divided along racial, ethnic, native/newcomer, religious lines
 - The Know-Nothing party; discrimination and segregation
 - Immigrants double the free labor force for mines, factories, railroads, docks
- h. Westward migration; Indian removals; war against Mexico
 - Since Louisiana Purchase, Indians forced to sell or abandon lands; Jackson defies Supreme Court, forces Cherokee "Trail of Tears"

United States History
Selections from Core Knowledge and Commonly Taught Subtopics
Relating to Genocide and Human Rights

From the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework, pages 13-15, 24-39

5. The Civil War and Reconstruction (1850 to 1877)

- a. Slave life; families, religion, and resistance in the American South
- b. A nation divided; the failed attempts at compromise over slavery
- g. Emancipation Proclamation; the 13th, 14th, and 15th Amendments
 - Proclamation of January 1, 1863; Lincoln uses war power to declare slaves free in areas under Confederate control
 - 13th Amendment, 1865, bans slavery everywhere in the United States
 - 14th Amendment, 1868, declares former slaves are citizens with equal rights
 - 15th Amendment, 1870, declares right of citizens to vote regardless of "race, color, or previous condition of servitude"

6. The Advent of Modern America (1865 to 1920)

- a. Changes and constraints for African-Americans; Plessy v. Ferguson
 - Black voting blocked by force and fear; emergence of Klan; lynch law
- e. New immigration and internal demographic shifts;
 - African American migration to the North and West; life in growing American cities
 - Resurgence of nativist hostility; the Chinese Exclusion Act 1882 follows upon the completion of western railroads, built by Chinese labor
- f. Settlements and diversity; the West, Southwest, Pacific coast, Alaska
 - Slaughter of the buffalo; final defeat of Plains Indians, confinement to reservations
- h. The United States as world power; the Spanish American War
 - Imperial arguments: "white man's burden" to "civilize" and democratize; Social Darwinism; needs of expanding trade; global balance of power

7. The United States and Two World Wars (1914 to 1945)

- b. The war, the peace: short and long-term consequences for 20th century America
 - Effects of World War I bring Communists to power in Russia; opens Italy to Fascists and opens Germany to Nazis, and Europe to crises of the 1930s, WW II and Cold War
- c. Campaign for women's suffrage; the 19th Amendment
 - In 1920, pro-suffragists win ratification of the 19th Amendment
- k. American isolationism; Axis aggression and conquest in Asia and Europe
 - Neutrality strained; Japanese rape of Nanking; Nazi terrorism, rearmament, and threats; Italy crushes Ethiopians; Franco destroys Spanish republic
- l. From Pearl Harbor to victory; the course and human costs of World War II
 - Japanese seize Philippines; Bataan Death March
 - Anti-Axis fervor; Japanese hysteria on the West coast; FDR approves internment camps for over 100,000 Japanese-Americans; their property taken

Introduction

On August 10, 1998 the Massachusetts Legislature and Governor enacted into law An Act Requiring Certain Instructions in the Public Schools of the Commonwealth.

The law reads as follows:

Chapter 276 of the Acts of 1998

*An Act Requiring Certain Instructions In the Public Schools Of the Commonwealth,
The Board of Education shall formulate recommendations on curricular materials on genocide and human rights issues, and guidelines for the teaching of such material. Said material and guidelines may include, but shall not be limited to, the period of the transatlantic slave trade and the middle passage, the great hunger period in Ireland, the Armenian genocide, the holocaust and the Mussolini fascist regime and other recognized human rights violations and genocides. In formulating these recommendations, the board shall consult with practicing teachers, principals, superintendents, and curricular coordinators in the commonwealth, as well as experts knowledgeable in genocide and human rights issues. Said recommendations shall be available to all school districts in the commonwealth on an advisory basis, and shall be filed with the clerk of the house of representatives, the clerk of the senate, and the house and senate chairmen of the joint committee on education, arts, and humanities not later than March 1, 1999.*

Learning about genocide in history and its persistence into the present day is important for today's students. Although most students learn about the Nazi Holocaust, they may regard it as an isolated phenomenon, and do not learn that many such incidents of intentional mass killings have occurred all over the world and throughout history. Genocides in the modern era have often been sanctioned by specific governments and based on ideologies that legitimize prejudice and violence. It is important that students have factual knowledge about these issues, and that they understand how other governments, organizations, and individuals work to preserve and protect human rights. It is also important that students understand how genocides and other human rights violations have contributed to immigration patterns in history. Learning about the history of genocides can lead the Commonwealth's students to understand the histories of the families in their schools, communities, and in the nation as a whole.

Massachusetts Guide to Choosing and Using Curricular Materials on Genocide and Human Rights

DRAFT: January 15, 1999

Table of Contents

Introduction	3
Background: The Education Reform Act of 1993	4
Teaching about Genocide and Human Rights Issues: Guiding Principles	5
Scope, Sequence, and Developmental Concerns	7
Academic Content: The Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework	10
United States History: Selections from Core Knowledge	11
World History: Selections from Core Knowledge	13
Strands and Learning Standards	15
Reasoning, Reflection, Research, and Content in History and Social Science	19
Connections to English Language Arts	20
Choosing Instructional Materials and Programs on Genocide and Human Rights Issues	21
The Internet as a Tool for Researching Genocide and Human Rights Issues	22
Resources for Teaching about Genocide and Human Rights Issues	23
Selected Print Resources for Teachers and High School Students	27
Appendix A: Human Rights in the Founding Documents of the United States	29
Appendix B: The Universal Declaration of Human Rights	31
Appendix C: The Convention on the Rights of the Child	35
Appendix D: Definitions of Genocide	38
Appendix E: Background Information on Human Rights Violations and Genocides	39

United States History
Selections from Core Knowledge and Commonly Taught Subtopics
Relating to Genocide and Human Rights

From the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework, pages 13-15, 24-39

8. The Contemporary United States (1945 to the Present)

- a. Postwar America: prosperity, new suburbs, education, optimism
 - Early steps to racial equality: Truman desegregates armed forces by executive order; his "Fair Deal" for national health insurance and civil rights laws is passed
- d. The 'fifties: suburbs, advent of television, domestic anti-communism; war in Korea, rising demands for desegregation; Brown v. Board of Education
 - In Brown v. Board of Education, 1954, Supreme Court unanimously rules against school segregation
 - Rosa Parks and the Montgomery Bus Boycott, 1955; emergence of Martin Luther King, Jr.; militant non-violence, Christian and Gandhian
 - Eisenhower signs Civil Rights Act of 1957, first since Reconstruction, creating the Civil Rights Commission; he federalizes Arkansas National Guard to force the desegregation of Little Rock Central High School
- e. The 'sixties and 'seventies: assassinations, civil rights struggles and laws, war in Vietnam, moon landing, the women's movement: advances and limits
 - August 1963 civil rights march on Washington; King's "I have a dream" speech
 - JFK assassination in Dallas, November 1963, first trauma of the 'sixties
 - Lyndon Johnson signs Civil Rights Act of 1964, Voting Rights Act of 1965
 - Assassination of Martin Luther King, Jr. stirs nationwide black rioting
- g. The end of the Cold War; new world disorders and American responses
 - Civil wars, bombardment of civilians, "ethnic cleansing" in former Yugoslavia; Clinton administration moves slowly toward intervention; the Dayton accords
 - Relations with China; human rights vs. enlarged trade; failure to curb Chinese sales of arms to rogue nations

World History

Selections from Core Knowledge and Commonly Taught Subtopics

Relating to Genocide and Human Rights

From the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework, pages 16-17, 40-50

2. Classical Civilizations of the Ancient World (1000 B.C. to c. 500 A.D.)

- e. Institutions, culture and legacies of the Roman Republic and Empire
 - Imperial Rome; geography, armies, people, citizens, slavery

3. Growth of Agricultural and Commercial Civilizations (500 to 1500 A.D.)

- h. Africa: cities and states; gold, salt, and slave trade; Muslim expansion
 - Economic factors: trans-Saharan camel trade; gold, salt, and slaves
 - England: Norman kings; Magna Carta as a feudal contract; Model Parliament

4. Emergence of a Global Age (1440 to 1750).

- f. European conquests, colonization, and consequences in the Americas
 - Extension of African slavery to the Western hemisphere

5. The Age of Revolutionary Change (1700 to 1914)

- b. The Enlightenment in Europe and America
- c. Origins, stages, and consequences of the American and French Revolutions
 - Lasting world-wide effects of the two revolutions; universal drives to national independence, liberty, political democracy, social and economic justice
- g. Democratic and social reform in Europe; evolutions and revolution
 - 19th century ideologies and social movements: Liberalism, Conservatism, radical republicanism, socialism, Marxism, labor unionism, social democracy
 - Europe-wide revolutions in 1848; failed, from classes and ideologies in conflict
 - Irish famine, German revolutions, Russian pogroms, poverty in Southern and Eastern Europe press millions to emigrate to the United States and Canada
 - Universal manhood suffrage common by 1900
 - Struggle for women's rights: the suffragettes; the Pankhursts in England

6. The World in the Era of Great Wars (1900 to 1945)

- f. International Communism; Leninist/Stalinist totalitarianism in Russia
 - In the Soviet Union, Stalin takes power; forced industrialization; agriculture collectivized; "liquidation" of kulak farmers
- g. International Fascism; Italy, Spain; Nazi totalitarianism in Germany
 - Fear of the left drives many to choose fascism as a "lesser evil"
 - Mussolini imposes one-party military dictatorship of Italy
 - Franco and army attack Spanish Republic; Civil War; Picasso's Guernica
 - German Nazism; economic controls; one-party terror; anti-Semitism, pogroms, concentration and death camps
- j. World War II: geography, leaders, military factors, turning points
 - Life in Nazified Europe: deportation of Jews; resistance movements distract German military; German resistance: among some churchmen; the officers' plot
- k. The human toll of 20th century wars and genocides; the Holocaust
 - The Armenian genocides, mid-1890's and 1915
 - The Holocaust; Nazi racism and eugenics; the Warsaw ghetto; mass plunder and destruction of European Jews; postwar Nuremberg trials

World History

Selections from Core Knowledge and Commonly Taught Subtopics

Relating to Genocide and Human Rights

From the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework, pages 16-17, 40-50

7. The World from 1945 to the present

- b. Rebuilding and Reform in postwar Europe and Japan
 - Post World War I American policies reversed: the United Nations; the Marshall Plan; NATO military alliance; military preparedness at home
- h. Persistent nationalism; militarism; conflicts of race, religion, and ethnicity
 - The Middle East; religion, oil, dictatorships; the Gulf War
 - Collapse of Yugoslavia into civil wars, "ethnic cleansing;" the Dayton Accords
 - Civil wars and genocide in Rwanda and Zaire
 - New forms of terrorism; continued arms races; proliferation of nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons
- i. Democracy and human rights; advances and retreats since 1945
 - Universal Declaration of Human Rights; role of Eleanor Roosevelt
 - A divided United Nations; economic and humanitarian achievements and their limits; peacekeeping efforts lost and won; case study of Crete
 - Expansion of women's rights and responsibilities: near-universal suffrage; women legislators and prime ministers, East and West
 - Contrasting cases: South Africa: de Klerk and Nelson Mandela; China: militarism, persecution of neighbors and dissenters; prison labor
 - Democratic gains and continuing struggles: Eastern Europe, South Asia, Russia, Central and South America, the Caribbean

Strands and Learning Standards

From the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework, pages 63 to 130

Learning Standards, Grades PreK-12

Expectations for students at specific gradespans will be found in the History and Social Science Framework.

History

"Historical time is the lens through which we see change and continuity in human affairs. ...Perhaps most important, the study of history - in conjunction with biography, literature, and philosophy - enriches the opportunities of students to choose their own paths in public and private life. ...Knowing the past is a precondition to making responsible choices in the present." (page 64)

1. Chronology and Cause.

Students will understand the chronological order of historical events and recognize the complexity of historical cause and effect, including the interaction of forces from different spheres of human activity, the importance of ideas, and of individual choices, actions, and character.

2. Historical Understanding.

Students will understand the meaning, implications, and import of historical events, while recognizing the contingency and unpredictability of history – how events could have taken other directions – by studying past ideas as they were thought, and past events as they were lived, by people of the time.

3. Research, Evidence, and Point of View.

Students will acquire the ability to frame questions that can be answered by historical study and research; to collect, evaluate, and employ information from primary and secondary sources, and to apply it in oral and written presentations. They will understand the many kinds and uses of evidence; and by comparing competing historical narratives, they will differentiate historical fact from historical interpretation and from fiction.

4. Society, Diversity, Commonality, and the Individual.

As a vast nation, the overwhelming majority of whose population derives from waves of immigration from many lands, the United States has a citizenry that exhibits a broad diversity in terms of race, ethnic traditions, and religious beliefs. The history of the United States exhibits perhaps the most important endeavor to establish a civilization founded on the principles that all people are created equal, that it is the purpose of government to secure the inalienable rights of all individuals, and that government derives "its just powers from the consent of the governed." It is also true, however, that federal, state, and local governments as well as the people themselves have often fallen short in practice of actualizing these high ideals, the most egregious violation being the acceptance of slavery in some states until the Civil War. Students should be expected to learn of the complex interplay that has existed from the beginning of our country between American ideals and American practice in the pursuit of realizing the goals of the Declaration of Independence for all people. While attending to the distinct contributions that immigrants from various lands and of various creeds, along with Native Americans, have made to our nationhood, students should be taught above all the importance of our common citizenship and the imperative to treat all individuals with the respect for their dignity called for by the Declaration of Independence.

5. Interdisciplinary Learning: Religion, Ethics, Philosophy, and Literature in History.

Students will describe and explain fundamental tenets of major world religions; basic ideals of ethics, including justice, consideration for others, and respect for human rights; differing conceptions of human nature; and influences over time of religion, ethics, and ideas of human nature in the arts, political and economic theories and ideologies, societal norms, education of the public, and conduct of individual lives. (See also relevant strands in the Massachusetts English Language Arts Curriculum Framework.)

6. Interdisciplinary Learning: Natural Science, Mathematics, and Technology in History.

Students will describe and explain major advances, discoveries, and inventions over time in natural science, mathematics, and technology; explain some of their effects and influences in the past and present on human life, thought, and health, including use of natural resources, production and distribution and consumption of goods, exploration, warfare, and communication. (See also relevant strands in the Massachusetts Mathematics and Science/Technology Curriculum Frameworks.)

Geography

"Geography, like the other social sciences, requires substantive knowledge, intellectual skills, and concepts. ... The study of geography is as much about the effects of distance, isolation, inaccessibility, and adaptation to particular circumstances as it is about proximity, connection, and commonality. ... Students examine and weigh evidence from many sources – data on trade patterns, population, migrations, epidemics, and environmental changes." (page 66)

7. Physical Spaces of the Earth.

Students will describe earth's natural features and their physical and biological characteristics; they will be able to visualize and map oceans and continents; mountain chains and rivers; forests, plain, and desert; resources both above and below ground; and conditions of climate and seasons.

8. Places and Regions of the World. Students will identify and explain the location and features of places and systems organized over time, including boundaries of nations and regions; ... fortifications; and routes of trade and invasion.

9. The Effects of Geography.

Students will learn how physical environments have influenced particular cultures, economies, and political systems, and how geographic factors have affected population distribution, human migration, and other prehistoric and historical developments, such as agriculture, manufacturing, trade, and transportation.

10. Human Alteration of Environments.

Students will describe the ways in which human activity has changed the world, such as removing natural barriers; transplanting some animal and plant species, and eliminating others; increasing or decreasing the fertility of land; and the mining of resources. They explain how science, technology and institutions of many kinds have affected human capacity to alter environments.

Economics

"In teaching history, geography, and civics and government, teachers will have many opportunities to direct students to important economic considerations, such as the nature of incentives, the resources available to people in a particular situation, the amount of capital and labor needed to exploit a resource, the nature of contemporary markets for what people can produce, the constraints of climate, transportation, storage, and security, the effects of laws, taxes, the honesty of government officials, and the reliability of courts, and the degree to which economic activity reflected private and public investment in such things as roads, canals, public order, and protection of frontiers." (page 69)

11. Fundamental Economic Concepts.

Students will understand fundamental economic concepts, including choice, ownership exchange, cooperation, competition, purposive effort, entrepreneurship, incentive, and money. The emphasis in the lower grades will be on clarity of understanding, not terminology. Instruction in fundamental economics concepts will continue through grade twelve, and will develop progressively to include mastery of more complex concepts and accurate use of important terms.

12. Economic Reasoning.

Students will demonstrate understanding of supply and demand, price, labor markets, the cost of capital, factors affecting production, distribution, and consumption, relations among such factors, the nature of goods and services, incentives, financial markets, cost-benefit (including marginal cost-benefit) analysis, fairness, and the value of trade. The emphasis in the lower grades will be on teaching children how to recognize the components of a successful project and to identify the elements of progressively more complex stories that describe work, industry, and other economic activity. Instruction in economic reasoning will continue through grade twelve and will develop to include understanding of the complex nature of economic reasoning and accurate use of important terms.

13. American and Massachusetts Economic History.

Students will describe the development of the American economy, including Massachusetts and New England, from colonial times to the present. The subjects the students will master will include the size of populations at intervals in our history; the relative concentration on agriculture, industry, and commerce; the rise and decline of particular industries; the history of labor, including organized labor; the growth of banking and finance; the record of economic expansions and recessions; and the influence of various views on how government can best serve the economic interests of the state and the nation. The emphasis in the lower grades will be on teaching children stories about American economic history. Instruction in American economic history in later grades will focus on detailed knowledge of place, event, circumstance and relation to other historical, geographic, and civic matters.

14. Today's Economy.

Students will describe the distinctive aspects of the contemporary economy of the United States and the world. The subjects the students will master will include the historically unprecedented speed of transactions, the role of quickly-disseminated information in the contemporary world economy, the growth in the size and scale of markets, the role of modern technology, the rise of service industries, and changes in the role of labor.

15. Theories of Economy.

Students will describe and compare the major theories of economy, and will identify the individuals and historical circumstances in which these theories were developed. Students will explain, for example, the theories of feudalism, mercantilism, communism, capitalism, and free-market economies, and will be able to describe and explain the differences among several instances of each.

Civics and Government

"Civics is part of political science: the study of the rights and duties of citizens and the nature of civic virtue. To exercise their rights and fulfill their duties responsibly, citizens must learn what their rights and duties are and acquire respect for the equal rights of others. ... Students need to learn then, not only the equal rights and duties of citizens, but also the purposes, form, and limited extent of their government and its authority. The Founding Documents of the United States and the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, including its Declaration of the Rights of the Inhabitants ... are the living foundation of the United States as an experiment in ordered liberty, vital safeguards of the rights of the public, including students, and, imperfect though their implementation may be, they are the basis of this country's never ending quest for justice." (page 72)

16. Authority, Responsibility, and Power.

Students will explain forms of authority in government and other institutions; explain purposes of authority and distinguish authority from mere power, as in "a government of laws, but not of men"; and describe responsible and irresponsible exercise of both authority and power.

17. The Founding Documents.

Students will learn in progressively greater detail the contents and the history of the Founding Documents of the United States- The Declaration of Independence, The United States Constitution, and selected Federalist papers (as required by the Massachusetts Education Reform Act of 1993). They will assess the reasoning, purposes, and effectiveness of the documents; and, similarly, elements of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

18. Principles and Practices of American Government.

Students will describe how the United States government functions at the local, state, national, and international levels, with attention to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, its Declaration of the Rights of the Inhabitants, and the basic elements of its Frame of Government; analyze the background and evolution of constitutional and democratic government in the United States to the present day and explain the place of institutions of government in securing the rights of citizens.

19. Citizenship.

Students will learn the rights and duties of citizens and the principle of equal rights for all; consider the nature of civic virtue in a school, a community, a nation; and identify major obstacles and threats to civil rights.

20. Forms of Government.

Students will study, compare, contrast, and analyze diverse forms of government; the ways of life and opportunities they permit, promote, and prohibit; and their effects on human rights. They will evaluate forms of government in terms of justice, ordered liberty, efficiency, public safety, educational opportunity, and economic and social mobility.

Reasoning, Reflection, Research, and Content in History and Social Science
From the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework, pages 11-12

To become well grounded in history and social science, and to continue learning for themselves after they have finished school, students need to acquire both core knowledge and a firm grasp of reasoning and practice in inquiry and research. They must learn how to test and frame hypotheses, to distinguish logical from illogical reasoning, and to grasp the superiority of reflective thinking and evaluation over the impulsive and uninformed rush to judgment and decision.

...Teachers ought to give sustained, consistent attention to distinctions among the following:

- knowledge (judgment verified, proven, demonstrated, or confirmed by evidence);
- informed opinion (judgment supported by evidence);
- uninformed or mere opinion (belief without evidence);
- bias and prejudice (belief in spite of contravening evidence);
- scapegoating and stereotyping (prejudice based on radical and unfair oversimplification);
- open mindedness (receptiveness to new evidence);
- narrow mindedness (receptiveness only to evidence in favor of one's opinions, special pleading); and
- closed mindedness (unwillingness to seek, heed, or listen to evidence).

Over time, students who have become familiar with these distinctions will learn to reflect thoughtfully and conduct reliable research.

Good teachers explain such distinctions explicitly, as developmentally appropriate, but they illuminate them also by concentrating on the specific "how to" knowledge students need in order to understand subject matter content:

- how to understand and distinguish cause, effect, sequence, and correlation; long-term and short-term causal relations; and limitations on determining causes and effect;
- how to gather, interpret, and assess evidence from multiple and sometimes conflicting sources...;
- how to distinguish knowledge from various forms of opinion; how to minimize avoidable error; how to identify valid and fallacious arguments; how to test hypotheses; how to identify and avoid bias and prejudice; how and how not to compare present and past and infer lessons from the past; how to distinguish sound generalizations from false oversimplifications;...
- how to distinguish intentions and intended consequences of action from unanticipated and unpredicted effects; how to recognize and appreciate the force of accident, confusion, oversight, error, and unreason in human affairs;
- how to pay sufficient heed to the limits of our understanding and knowledge in matters of great complexity, without underestimating the extent to which we may come to know, or at least to reach, judgments supported by evidence.

Connections to English Language Arts

In addition to the History and Social Science Framework, the English Language Arts framework presents Learning Standards that are pertinent to the study of human rights and genocide issues. There are twenty-eight Learning Standards in English language arts. Selected ones appear below.

Selected Strands and Learning Standards

From the Massachusetts English Language Arts Framework, pages 23 to 68

Expectations for students at specific gradespans will be found in the English Language Arts Framework.

Literature

- 9. Students will identify the basic facts and essential ideas in what they have read, heard, or viewed.
- 11. Students will identify, analyze, and apply knowledge of theme in literature and provide evidence from the text to support their understanding.
- 13. Students will identify, analyze, and apply knowledge of the structure, elements, and meaning of non-fiction or informational material and provide evidence from the text to support their understanding.
- 17. Students will interpret the meaning of literary works, non-fiction, films, and media by using different critical lenses and analytic techniques.

Composition

- 19. Students will write compositions with a clear focus, logically related ideas to develop it, and adequate detail.
- 23. Students will use self-generated questions, note-taking, summarizing, précis writing, and outlining to enhance learning when reading and writing.
- 24. Students will use open-ended research questions, different sources of information, and appropriate research methods to gather information for their research projects.

Media

- 26. Students will obtain information by using a variety of media and evaluate the quality of the media they obtain.

Selecting Literature Related to Genocide and Human Rights Issues

Appendices A and B, beginning on page 69 of the English Language Arts Framework, are lists of suggested authors, illustrators, or works reflecting the common literary and cultural heritage of the United States, as well as world literature. Appendix F, Relating Literature to Key Historical Documents, on page 84, shows possible ways to connect literature with the study of key historical documents.

School and public libraries can provide resource lists of nonfiction and fiction dealing with genocide and human rights issues. There are many organizations and journals that regularly review fiction, nonfiction, and media resources for children and adolescents. These are listed on page 92 of the English Language Arts Framework.

Choosing Instructional Materials and Programs on Genocide and Human Rights Issues

Although some information on genocide and human rights issues is contained in textbooks, teachers wishing to explore these topics in greater depth must find further information in reference and trade books, articles, films, Internet resources, and literature. The Massachusetts Department of Education does not endorse or mandate any curriculum materials, but offers the guidelines below.

Nonfiction literature, documentaries, and informational materials related to genocide and human rights issues should provide:

- Historically accurate and complete information based on primary sources;
- Coherent arguments and differing points of view on controversial issues;
- Well-written and organized texts, with rich and challenging vocabulary, skillful use of language, clear charts and diagrams, and pertinent, historically appropriate period illustrations such as engravings, photographs, film footage, or cartoons;
- Explanatory text that is free of racial, cultural, ethnic, linguistic, and gender bias;
- Citations for sources of texts, interviews, illustrations, film footage, and other visual or aural materials; and
- Descriptions of research methods used.

Fiction, poetry, personal essays, and live or filmed drama dealing with genocide and human rights issues should provide:

- Themes that provoke thinking and give insight into universal human emotions and dilemmas;
- Authenticity in the depiction of human emotions and experiences of diverse cultures;
- Excellence in use of language (rich and challenging vocabulary, style, skillful use of literary devices); and
- Exploration of the complexity and ambiguity of the human condition.

Support and background materials for teachers should provide:

- Sufficient material for in-depth investigations of major historical events;
- Suggestions for creating learning environments and multiple forms of assessment for students at a variety of reading levels;
- Interdisciplinary connections;
- An emphasis on critical thinking about historical sources and events; and
- A bibliography of primary sources, materials, and resources.

The Internet as a Tool for Researching Genocide and Human Rights Issues

While the Internet has become a valuable tool for research, it is a resource without “filters.” In the classroom, materials must be evaluated for authenticity, accuracy, and bias. Students need to have tools to analyze the validity of sources they find on the Net, particularly when they research controversial issues and current events.

The questions below can help Internet users make decisions about the nature of the information they find on various websites.

- ❖ Who sponsors the site? Who writes the material that appears on it?
 - Does an individual or an organization sponsor the site?
 - Is the author or organization a recognized authority?
 - Had you heard of the organization or author before you found the site on the Internet?
 - Are the author’s credentials mentioned on the site?
 - Does the author/publisher provide an email address?
- ❖ How reliable is the information posted on the site?
 - Does the site give links to other recognized sites?
 - Is the information factual?
 - Is the text well written?
 - Does the page cite a bibliography or references to confirm accuracy?
 - Is there author bias?
 - Are the topics included explored in depth?
 - Are the articles or other posted materials dated?
- ❖ What is the source of this information?
 - Educational institutions: .edu
 - Government: .gov
 - Military: .mil
 - Professional organization: .org
 - Commercial sites: .com
 - Internet providers: .net
 -
- ❖ When was the site created?
 - Has the site been updated recently?
 - Does the site need to be current?
- ❖ Do the links work? Do they lead to other useful material?

Resources for Teaching about Genocide and Human Rights Issues

Massachusetts (Many of these organizations also provide resources nationally and internationally)

Armenian Studies and Research National Association
395 Concord Avenue
Belmont, MA 02478-3049
(617) 489-1610

The Children's Museum
300 Congress Street
Boston, MA 02210-1034
617-426-6500
TTY 617-426-5466

Community Change, Inc.
14 Beacon Street, Room 605
Boston, MA 02108
617-523-0555

Council for Native American Solidarity
62 Pleasant Street
Winthrop, MA 02152
617-846-7455

Cultural Survival
53A Church Street
Cambridge, MA 02138
FAX: 1-617-495-1396

Educators for Social Responsibility
23 Garden Street
Cambridge, MA 02138
617-492-1764
800-370-2515
<http://www.esmational.org>

Facing History and Ourselves
16 Hurd Road
Brookline, MA 02445
617-232-1595
617-735-1611
<http://www.facing.org>

Irish Studies Program
Boston College
140 Commonwealth Avenue
Chestnut Hill, MA 02167
(617) 552-8000
<http://bc.edu.org/avp/cas/irish/default.html>

Museum of Afro-American History
138 Mountfort Street
Brookline, MA 02446-4039
(Interim address until year 2000)
617-739-1200
www.afroammuseum.org

Museum of the National Center of African American Artists
300 Walnut Avenue
Roxbury, Massachusetts 02119
617-442-8614

National Park Service (The Underground Railroad)
14 Beacon Street, Suite 506
Boston, MA 02108
617-742-5415
<http://www.nps.gov/undergroundrr/>

North American Indian Center of Boston
105 South Huntington Avenue
Jamaica Plain, MA 02130

Primary Source
Post Office Box 381711
Cambridge, MA 02238
617-923-9933
<http://www.primarysource.org>

United American Indians of New England
PO Box 7501
Quincy, MA 02269
617-773-0406

National and International Organizations

Armenian National Institute
122 C Street NW Suite 360
Washington, DC 20001
<http://www.armenian-genocide.org/>
202-383-9009
Fax 202-383-9012
E-mail ani@aaa-inc.org

Cambodia Documentation Commission
251 West 87th Street, Apartment 74
New York, NY 10024

Committee of 500 Years of Dignity and Resistance
PO Box 620151
Cleveland, OH 44102-0151
216-631-4767

Crazy Horse Defense Project
3206 Rockwood Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55116

Holocaust Resource Center and Archives
Queensborough Community College
The City University of New York
Bayside, New York 11364
Hracaho@worldnet.att.net
718-225-1617,
Fax 718-631-6306

Honor, Inc
Route 1, PO Box 79A
Bayfield, WI 54814
715-779-3779,
FAX: 715-779-3704
Advocacy Office
224 2nd Street SE
Washington, DC 20003
205-546-8340
FAX 202-546-1684

Human Rights Watch
485 Fifth Avenue
New York, NY
FAX: 212-371-0124

Indian Law Resource Center
601 E. Street SE.
Washington, DC. 20003

Institute for the Study of Genocide
John Jay College of Criminal Justice
(City University of New York)
899 10th Avenue, Room 623
New York, NY 10019

International Human Rights Law Group
1601 Connecticut Avenue NW Suite 700
Washington, DC. 20009
FAX: 202-232-6731

The International Romani Union
Manhaca, TX 78652

Leo Baeck Institute
129 East 73rd Street
New York, NY
FAX: 212-988-1305

National Council for the Social Studies
3501 Newark Street NW
Washington, D.C. 20016
202-966-7840
<http://www.ncss.org>

National Civil Rights Museum
450 Mulberry Street
Memphis, TN 38103
901-521-9699
<http://midsouth.rr.com/civilrights>

Network of Educators on the Americas
(NECA)
PO Box 73038
Washington, DC 20056
202-238-2379
FAX 202-238-2378
<http://teachingforchange.org>

Refugees International
220 I Street NE, Suite 2249
Washington, DC. 20002
FAX: 202-547-3796

Schomburg Center for Research on Black Culture
135th Street and Malcolm X Boulevard
New York, NY 10037-1801
212-491-2200
<http://www.nypl.org/research/sc/sc.html>

Simon Wiesenthal Center
9760 West Pico Boulevard
Los Angeles, CA 90035-4792
FAX: 310-277-5558
<http://www.wiesenthal.com/>

The Smithsonian Center for Folklife
Programs and Cultural Studies
955 L'Enfant Plaza SW., Suite 2600
Washington, DC. 20560
202-287-3424
<http://www.si.edu/folklife/>

Teaching Tolerance
Post Office Box 548
334-264-0268
Montgomery, AL 36101
<http://splcenter.org/teachingtolerance.html>

United Nations
New York, New York, 10017
212-963-4475
212-963-9246
FAX: 212-963-0071
United Nations Publications
800-253-9646
<http://www.un.org>

United States Committee for Refugees
1025 Vermont Avenue, NW, Suite 920
Washington, DC
FAX: 202-347-3418

United States Holocaust Memorial Museum
100 Raoul Wallenberg Place, SW
Washington, DC. 20024
FAX: 202-488-2690
<http://www.ushmm.org>

Additional Websites

The American Conference for Irish Studies

<http://athena.english.vt.edu/acis/frontpage.html>

An Gorta Mor: The Great Irish Famine

<http://www.wisc.edu/history/famine>

Boston College Center for Irish Studies

http://www.bc.edu/bc_org/avp/cas/irish/default.html

The Cambodian Genocide Program

<http://www.vale.edu/cgp>

The Genocide Research Project

<http://www.people.memphis.edu/~genocide>

Irish History on the Web

<http://www.vms.utexas.edu/~jdana/irehist.html>

Irish Serials in the Boston College Libraries

http://fmweb2.bc.edu/irish_serials/default.htm

Irish Studies Website

<http://www.vms.utexas.edu/~jdana/irishstudies.html>

Select Bibliography: Primary, Secondary and Hypertext Sources

<http://avery.med.virginia.edu/~cas5e/irish/biblio.html>

The Great Irish Famine, New Jersey Department of Education Curriculum

http://www.nde.state.nj.us/SS/irish_famine.html

Selected Print Resources for Teachers and High School Students

African American Studies

Bennett, Jerone, Jr. Before the Mayflower: A History of Black America, 6th ed. New York: Penguin USA, 1993.

Burnside, Madeline, et al. Spirits of the Passage: The Transatlantic Slave Trade in the Seventeenth Century. New York: Simon and Schuster, 1997.

Franklin, John Hope and Alfred A. Moss, Jr. From Slavery to Freedom: A History of Negro American, 6th ed. New York: Alfred A. Knopf, 1988.

Quarles, Benjamin. The Negro in the Making of America, revised ed. New York: Collier Books, 1987.

Armenian Studies

The Armenian Genocide in the U.S. Archives, 1915-1918. Alexandria, VA: Chadwick-Healey, Inc., 1990.

Dadrian, Vahakn, N. "The Armenian Genocide and the Evidence of German Involvement," University of Los Angeles Law Review: 29, 1998.

_____, "Genocide as a Problem of National and International Law: the World War I Armenian Case and its Contemporary Legal Ramifications," Yale Journal of International Law, 14:2, 1989.

Kloian, Richard D. The Armenian Genocide: News Accounts from the American Press (1915-1922). Richmond, CA: ACC Books, 1980.

Parsons, William S. Everyone's Not Here: Families of the Armenian Genocide. Washington, D.C. Armenian Assembly of America, 1989.

Warner, Jay and Blaine Baggett. The Great War and the Shaping of the 20th Century. New York: Penguin Studio, 1992.

Genocide, Holocaust, and Human Rights Studies

Connecticut State Board of Education. Human Rights: The Struggle for Freedom, Dignity, and Equality. Hartford, Connecticut State Board of Education, 1998.

William S. Parsons and Samuel Totten. "Teaching About Genocide," a special section in Social Education, the official journal of the National Council on the Social Studies, 55:2, February 1991.

Pinellas County Schools and the Tampa Bay Holocaust memorial Museum and Educational Center. The Holocaust: Classroom Connections. Pinellas County Schools: n.d.

Totten, Samuel, William S. Parsons, and Israel W. Charny. Genocide in the Twentieth Century. New York: Garland, 1995.

Irish Studies

Forbes, H. A. Crosby and Henry Lee. Massachusetts Help to Ireland During the Great Famine. Milton, MA: Captain Robert Bennett Fomes House, 1967.

New Jersey Irish Famine Curriculum Committee. The Great Irish Famine. New Jersey Department of Education, 1998. (Also available at http://www.nde.state.nj.us/SS/irish_famine.html)

O'Sullivan, Patrick. The Irish World Wide History, Heritage, Identity. Six volumes; London and Washington, D.C.: Leicester University Press, 1992-1997.

Ukrainian Studies

This section will be added in the final version.

Appendix A: Human Rights in the Founding Documents of the United States

The Declaration of Independence

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with Certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness. That, to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

Constitution of the United States

Article I

Section 9...The Privilege of the Writ of Habeas Corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in Cases of Rebellion or Invasion the public Safety may require it.

No Bill of Attainder or ex post facto Law shall be passed.

Section 10

No State shall...pass any Bill of Attainder, ex post facto Law, or Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts, or grant any Title of Nobility.

Article III

Section 2...The Trial of all Crimes, except in Cases of Impeachment, shall be by Jury; and such Trial shall be held in the State where the said Crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any State, the Trial shall be at the Place or Places as the Congress may by Law have directed.

Article IV

Section 2. The Citizens of each State shall be entitled to all Privileges and Immunities of Citizens in the United States.

Article VI

...no religious Test shall ever be required as a Qualification to any Office of public Trust under the United States.

United States Bill of Rights, the First Ten Amendments to the Constitution

Amendment 1

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Amendment 2

A well-regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed.

Amendment 3

No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house, without the consent of the Owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

Amendment 4

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

Amendment 5

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

Amendment 6

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

Amendment 7

In Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by jury, shall be otherwise reexamined in any Court of the United States, than according to the rules of common law.

Amendment 8

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

Amendment 9

The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

Amendment 10

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

Later Amendments Related to Human Rights

Amendment 13

Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for a crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

Amendment 14

Section 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person or life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Amendment 15

Section 1. The rights of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

Amendment 19

The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

Amendment 24

Section 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote in any primary or other election for President or Vice President, for electors for President or Vice President, or for Senator or Representative in Congress, shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any State by reason of failure to pay any poll tax or other tax.

Appendix B: The Universal Declaration Of Human Rights

(Adopted by the United Nations December 10, 1948)

Preamble

Whereas recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world,

Whereas disregard and contempt for human rights have resulted in barbarous acts which have outraged the conscience of mankind, and the advent of a world in which human beings shall enjoy freedom of speech and belief and freedom from fear and want has been proclaimed as the highest aspiration of the common people,

Whereas it is essential, if man is not to be compelled to have recourse, as a last resort, to rebellion against tyranny and oppression, that human rights should be protected by the rule of law,

Whereas it is essential to promote the development of friendly relations between nations,

Whereas the peoples of the United Nations have in the Charter reaffirmed their faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person and in the equal rights of men and women and have determined to promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom,

Whereas Member States have pledged themselves to achieve, in co-operation with the United Nations, the promotion of universal respect for and observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms,

Whereas a common understanding of these rights and freedoms is of the greatest importance for the full realization of this pledge,

Now, therefore, The General Assembly proclaims

This Universal Declaration of Human Rights as a common standard of achievement for all peoples and all nations, to the end that every individual and every organ of society, keeping this Declaration constantly in mind, shall strive by teaching and education to promote respect for these rights and freedoms and by progressive measures, national and international, to secure their universal and effective recognition and observance, both among the peoples of Member States themselves and among the peoples of territories under their jurisdiction.

Article 1

All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights. They are endowed with reason and conscience and should act towards one another in a spirit of brotherhood.

Article 2

Everyone is entitled to all the rights and freedoms set forth in this Declaration, without distinction of any kind, such as race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.

Furthermore, no distinction shall be made on the basis of the political, jurisdictional or international status of the country or territory to which a person belongs, whether it be independent, trust, non-self-governing or under any other limitation of sovereignty.

Article 3

Everyone has the right to life, liberty and security of person.

Article 4

No one shall be held in slavery or servitude; slavery and the slave trade shall be prohibited in all their forms.

Article 5

No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Article 6

Everyone has the right to recognition everywhere as a person before the law.

Article 7

All are equal before the law and are entitled without any discrimination to equal protection of the law. All are entitled to equal protection against any discrimination in violation of this Declaration and against any incitement to such discrimination.

Article 8

Everyone has the right to an effective remedy by the competent national tribunals for acts violating the fundamental rights granted him by the constitution or by law.

Article 9

No one shall be subjected to arbitrary arrest, detention or exile.

Article 10

Everyone is entitled in full equality to a fair and public hearing by an independent and impartial tribunal, in the determination of his rights and obligations and of any criminal charge against him.

Article 11

Everyone charged with a penal offence has the right to be presumed innocent until proved guilty according to law in a public trial at which he has had all the guarantees necessary for his defense.

No one shall be held guilty of any penal offence on account of any act or omission, which did not constitute a penal offence, under national or international law, at the time when it was committed. Nor shall a heavier penalty be imposed than the one that was applicable at the time the penal offence was committed.

Article 12

No one shall be subjected to arbitrary interference with his privacy, family, home or correspondence, nor to attacks upon his honour and reputation. Everyone has the right to the protection of the law against such interference or attacks.

Article 13

1. Everyone has the right to freedom of movement and residence within the borders of each state.
2. Everyone has the right to leave any country, including his own, and to return to his country.

Article 14

1. Everyone has the right to seek and to enjoy in other countries asylum from persecution.
2. This right may not be invoked in the case of prosecutions genuinely arising from non-political crimes or from acts contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

Article 15

1. Everyone has the right to a nationality.
2. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his nationality nor denied the right to change his nationality.

Article 16

1. Men and women of full age, without any limitation due to race, nationality or religion, have the right to marry and to found a family. They are entitled to equal rights as to marriage, during marriage and at its dissolution.
2. Marriage shall be entered into only with the free and full consent of the intending spouses.
3. The family is the natural and fundamental group unit of society and is entitled to protection by society and the State.

Article 17

1. Everyone has the right to own property alone as well as in association with others.
2. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of this property.

Article 18

Everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion; this right includes freedom to change his religion or belief, and freedom, either alone or in community with others and in public or private, to manifest his religion or belief in teaching, practice, worship and observance.

Article 19

Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers.

Article 20

1. Everyone has the right to freedom of peaceful assembly and association.
2. No one may be compelled to belong to an association.

Article 21

1. Everyone has the right to take part in the government of his country, directly or through freely chosen representatives.
2. Everyone has the right of equal access to public service in his country.
3. The will of the people shall be the basis of the authority of government; this will shall be expressed in periodic and genuine elections which shall be by universal and equal suffrage and shall be held by secret vote or by equivalent free voting procedures.

Article 22

Everyone, as a member of society, has the right to social security and is entitled to realization, through national effort and international co-operation and in accordance with the organization and resources of each State, of the economic, social and cultural rights indispensable for his dignity and the free development of his personality.

Article 23

1. Everyone has the right to work, to free choice of employment, to just and favourable conditions of work and to protection against unemployment.
2. Everyone, without any discrimination, has the right to equal pay for equal work.
3. Everyone who works has the right to just and favourable remuneration ensuring for himself and his family an existence worthy of human dignity, and supplemented, if necessary, by other means of social protection.
4. Everyone has the right to form and to join trade unions for the protection of his interests.

Article 24

Everyone has the right to rest and leisure, including reasonable limitation of working hours and periodic holidays with pay.

Article 25

1. Everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family, including food, clothing, housing and medical care and necessary social services, and the right to security in the event of unemployment, sickness, disability, widowhood, old age or other lack of livelihood in circumstances beyond his control.
2. Motherhood and childhood are entitled to special care and assistance. All children, whether born in or out of wedlock, shall enjoy the same social protection.

Article 26

1. Everyone has the right to education. Education shall be free, at least in the elementary and fundamental stages. Elementary education shall be compulsory. Technical and professional education shall be made generally available and higher education shall be equally accessible to all on the basis of merit.
2. Education shall be directed to the full development of the human personality and to the strengthening of respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms. It shall promote understanding, tolerance and friendship among all nations, racial or religious groups, and shall further the activities of the United Nations for the maintenance of peace.
3. Parents have a prior right to choose the kind of education that shall be given to their children.

Article 27

1. Everyone has the right freely to participate in the cultural life of the community, to enjoy the arts and to share in scientific advancement and its benefits.
2. Everyone has the right to the protection of the moral and material interests resulting from any scientific, literary or artistic production of which he is the author.

Article 28

Everyone is entitled to a social and international order in which the rights and freedoms set forth in this Declaration can be fully realized.

Article 29

1. Everyone has duties to the community in which alone the free and full development of his personality is possible.
2. In the exercise of his rights and freedoms, everyone shall be subject only to such limitations as are determined by law solely for the purpose of securing due recognition and respect for the rights and freedoms of others and of meeting the just requirements of morality, public order and the general welfare in a democratic society.
3. These rights and freedoms may in no case be exercised contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

Article 30

Nothing in this Declaration may be interpreted as implying for any State, group or person any right to engage in any activity or to perform any act aimed at the destruction of any of the rights and freedoms set forth herein.

Appendix C: The Convention on the Rights of the Child

(Adopted by the United Nations General Assembly, November 20, 1989)

The Convention defines as a child every human being under 18, unless national laws recognize the age of majority earlier.

The Convention sets minimum legal and moral standards for the protection of children's rights. Nothing in the Convention affects any provisions that contribute more to the realization of child rights and that may be found in the law of the State Party or in other international laws in force in that State -- the higher standard shall always apply.

States parties to the Convention have a legal and moral obligation to advance the cause of child rights, through administrative, legislative, judicial and other measures in implementation of this Convention.

The Convention stipulates the following general principles:

- States shall ensure each child enjoys full rights without discrimination or distinctions of any kind;

The child's best interests shall be a primary consideration in all actions concerning children whether undertaken by public or private social institutions, courts, administrative authorities or legislative bodies;

- Every child has an inherent right to life and States shall ensure, to the maximum extent possible, child survival and development;
- Children have the right to be heard.

The Convention stipulates the following substantive provisions:

1. Civil rights and freedoms

Every child has a right to a name and nationality from birth, and States have an obligation to preserve the child's identity. Children have the right to freedom of expression, and the State shall respect their right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion, subject to appropriate parental guidance. Children also have the right to freedom of association and to be protected against interference with their privacy. Furthermore, no child shall be subjected to torture, or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. Both capital punishment and life imprisonment without the possibility of release are prohibited for offences committed by persons below 18 years.

2. Family environment and parental guidance

The Convention stipulates that States must respect the rights and responsibilities of parents and extended family members to provide guidance for children that is appropriate to the child's evolving capacities. The Convention gives parents a joint and primary responsibility for raising their children and stipulates that the State should support them in child-raising. Children should not be separated from their parents, unless this is deemed to be in the child's best interests by competent authorities and in accordance with applicable laws. Children also have the right to maintain contact with both parents if separated from one or both. Children and their parents have the right to leave any country and to enter their own for purposes of reunion or maintenance of the child-parent relationship. Parents are responsible to ensure that children enjoy an adequate standard of living while the State has the duty to ensure that this responsibility can be fulfilled.

The Convention obliges the State to provide special protection for children deprived of a family environment. Where applicable, adoption is to be carried out in the best interests of children and with the authorization of the competent authorities.

The State also has the obligation to prevent and remedy the kidnapping or retention of children abroad by a parent or third party; and to protect children from all forms of abuse and neglect. It is the responsibility of the State to ensure -- in cases of children victims of armed conflict, torture, neglect, maltreatment or exploitation -- that they receive appropriate rehabilitative care and treatment to facilitate their recovery and social integration into society. Furthermore, a child placed by the State for reasons of care, protection or treatment is entitled to have that placement evaluated regularly.

3. Basic health and welfare of children

Every child has a right to life, and States Parties shall ensure to the maximum extent possible the survival and development of the child, and the right to the highest attainable standard of health. States shall place special emphasis on the provision of primary and preventive health care, public health education and reduction of infant mortality. They shall encourage international cooperation in this regard and strive to see that no child is deprived of access to effective health services.

Disabled children have the right to special treatment, education and care. Children also have the right to benefit from social security. States Parties shall take all appropriate measures to ensure that children of working parents have the right to benefit from child-care services and facilities for which they are eligible.

States Parties recognize the right of every child to a standard of living adequate for the child's physical, mental, spiritual, moral and social development.

4. Education, leisure and recreation

Children have a right to education, and it is the State's responsibility to ensure that primary education shall be free and compulsory, that discipline in school should respect the child's dignity; and that the aims of education are geared towards developing children's personalities as well as their mental and physical abilities to the fullest extent. Education should foster respect for parents, cultural identity, language and values and should prepare the child for a responsible life in society, in a spirit of understanding, peace, tolerance and friendship among all people. Children also have a right to enjoy leisure, recreation and cultural activities.

5. Special protection measures

a) In situations of armed conflict States Parties shall take all feasible measures to ensure that children under 15 years of age take no direct part in hostilities and that no child below 15 is recruited into the armed forces. In accordance with their obligations under international humanitarian law -- particularly the Geneva Conventions to protect the civilian population in armed conflicts -- States Parties shall take all feasible measures to ensure protection and care of children who are affected by armed conflict. The State has an obligation to ensure that child victims of armed conflicts, torture, neglect, maltreatment or exploitation receive appropriate treatment for their recovery and social reintegration.

Special protection shall be granted to a refugee child or to a child seeing refugee status. It is the State's obligation to cooperate with competent organizations that provide such protection and assistance.

b) In situations where children are in conflict with the law

Regarding the administration of juvenile justice, children who come in conflict with the law have the right to treatment that promotes their dignity and self-worth, and also takes the child's age into account and aims at his or her reintegration into society. Children in such cases are entitled to basic guarantees as well as legal or other assistance for their defense and judicial proceedings and institutional placements shall be avoided wherever possible.

Any child deprived of liberty shall be kept apart from adults unless it is in the child's best interests not to do so. Furthermore, a child who is detained shall have legal and other assistance as well as contact with his or her family.

c) In situations of exploitation

Children have the right to be protected from economic exploitation and from work that threatens their health, education or development. States shall set minimum ages for employment and regulating working conditions -- particularly in line with standards set forth by the International Labour Organisation, particularly in the Minimum Age Convention 1973 (No. 138).

Children have the right to protection from the use of narcotic and psychotropic drugs, as well as from being involved in their production or distribution.

The State shall protect children from sexual exploitation and abuse, including prostitution and involvement in pornography. The Convention stipulates that it is the State's obligation to make every effort to prevent the sale, trafficking and abduction of children.

d) In situations of children belonging to a minority or an indigenous group
Children of minority communities and indigenous populations have the right to enjoy their own culture and to practice their own religion and language.

Monitoring Implementation

The Committee on the Rights of the Child -- composed of 10 international experts -- is charged with the task of monitoring the implementation of the Convention. Ratifying the Convention obligates States Parties -- as a first step -- to review their national legislation to make sure it is in line with the provisions of the treaty. Each ratifying nation must submit a report to the Committee on the Rights of the Child, two years after ratification and then every five years, on measures it has taken to implement the provisions of the Convention in a practical way, and the difficulties and constraints faced in the process.

Appendix D: Definitions of Genocide

The term "genocide" was first used by jurist Raphael Lemkin in 1944 during World War II to describe the deliberate act of destroying or killing a race of people. In 1948, the United Nations adopted the Convention on Genocide.

The Convention defines as genocide five types of acts committed with the intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnic, racial, or religious group:

- killing members of a group;
- causing serious mental or bodily harm to members of the group;
- deliberately inflicting on the group conditions of life calculated to bring about its physical destruction in whole or in part;
- imposing measures to prevent births within the group; and/or
- forcibly transferring the children of the group to another group.

In the years since the Genocide Convention was adopted, scholars have debated the appropriateness of this definition, and have put forth other definitions. For a summary of alternatives proposed, see Frank Chalk and Kurt Jonassohn, "Genocide, An Historical Overview," Social Education 55:2 (February 1991) 92-95. (Social Education is the official journal of the National Council for the Social Studies.)

Appendix E: Background Information on Human Rights Violations and Genocides

The Transatlantic Slave Trade and the Middle Passage

The slave trade between Africa and the Americas began in the 1500s and ended in the United States in the 1800s. During this period an estimated thirty to sixty million Africans were sold into slavery and experienced a long and dehumanizing journey (the “middle passage”) from the West Coast of Africa to North America, South America, and the Caribbean Islands. The ships sailed in all weather conditions and voyages lasted from about 65 days to about four months. The people who survived the journey were sold at the end of the trip and legally enslaved on plantations.

Alignment with the recommended Scope and Sequence of the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework: An introduction to the topic PreK-4; more detailed study at Grades 5 and 8, United States history and Grade 9 world history.

The Great Hunger Period in Ireland

In the 1840s more than a million people in Ireland perished from starvation and disease when the staple food crop, potatoes, was infested with a blight that destroyed the harvest for six years. Historians generally agree that famine could have been prevented because there was sufficient food produced during this period in Ireland to prevent mass starvation. However, the grain, meat, and dairy products that were produced on large Irish estates owned by English absentee landlords were considered “cash crops” and were exported to England. The English government refused to interfere with the Irish economy. Private and public relief efforts based in the United States and other countries began in 1847, after many Irish people had died or emigrated. This marked the first time that the United States was involved in international humanitarian efforts. It is estimated that more than 2 million people emigrated from Ireland to America, Australia, or England between 1845 and 1855. The large numbers of immigrants to the Northeast states swelled America’s urban population; many of the new immigrants to the United States fought on the side of the Union during the Civil War; historians contend that this additional military strength was one of the decisive factors that contributed to the victory of the North.

Alignment with the recommended Scope and Sequence of the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework: Grades 5 and 8, United States history and Grade 9 World history.

The Armenian Genocide

In the 1890s, and during World War I, the Muslim Turkish Ottoman Empire destroyed large portions of its Christian Armenian minority population. Historians estimate that between 1894 to 1896, 100,000 to 300,000 Armenian civilians were massacred by state forces under the control of Sultan Abdul-Hamid II; the purpose of these massacres was to suppress Armenian nationalism and the increasing activity of Armenian political groups. In 1914, Turkey was ruled by a three-person dictatorship, known as the “young Turks,” leaders of the Committee of Union and Progress (CUP); the ideology of the CUP Party stressed nationalism, racial purity, and expansionism. Turkey joined World War I on the side of Germany in 1914, participating in attacks on Russian forces in seaports and Russian-controlled Persian Azerbaijan. In 1915, Turkish and Kurdish soldiers attacked Armenian villages, confiscated property, and massacred civilians whom they claimed to be Russian sympathizers; Armenians serving in the Turkish army were disarmed and forced into labor; and Armenian civilians were arrested and killed. Historians estimate that one to one and a half million Armenians were executed or died during forced deportations. Press coverage of the Armenians' plight was widespread in the American newspapers and magazines, spurring relief efforts directed toward saving the remaining deportees. The Armenian community was dispersed throughout the world, and many Armenians emigrated to the United States during this period.

*Alignment with the recommended Scope and Sequence of the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework:
Grades 9-10 world history.*

The Holocaust and the Mussolini Fascist Regime

During the reign of Adolf Hitler and the Nazi party in Germany, 1933-1945, six million Jews and some five million non-Jewish minorities were murdered throughout Nazi-occupied Europe. The victims of what has come to be known as the Holocaust were killed by the Nazis at gunpoint, by starvation, and in gas chambers. The Nazis, who saw themselves as a "master race," labeled the world's Jews and other groups of people as racially or ethnically inferior, or as political enemies and criminals, and carried out a systematic extermination of these people. In Italy of the 1930s and early 1940s, the Fascist government of Benito Mussolini centralized power, halted the work of democratic institutions, instituted press censorship, and passed laws curtailing the rights of minority groups. When Italy joined with Germany in 1943, the Nazi policy of exterminating Jews and minorities was extended to Italy.

*Alignment with the recommended Scope and Sequence of the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework:
Grades 9-10 world history.*

A Selection of other human rights violations and genocides listed in the Core Knowledge Section of the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework

This list is intended to be illustrative, not exhaustive. Additional information is available from many of the human rights organizations listed in the resource section, as well as from public libraries and school libraries.

Native Americans

The encounters between Europeans and Native Americans between the 16th and the 19th centuries led to the decimation of the Native American population. Indians died as the result of disease (accidentally and intentionally introduced), wars, massacres, and forced removal from their homelands. In early encounters, their trading systems were exploited, and their societies disrupted by white settlers. After King Philip's War (1675-76), historians estimate that more than half the Native American population of southern New England was wiped out.

As European settlers advanced westward, they came into conflict with tribes unwilling to give up their lands. In the 1800s, federal and state governments passed laws requiring Native Americans to leave their lands and move west beyond the Mississippi. Such legislation resulted in forced removals such the 1838-39 winter march of the Cherokee from Georgia, known as the "Trail of Tears," in which thousands died. The building of the transcontinental railroad brought an influx of white settlers into the west, and by 1868, 400 treaties had been broken. The Indian Appropriation Act of 1871 denied Native American tribes the right to be recognized as independent nations. Many Indians moved onto federal reservations. During the last decades of the 19th century, Indians and whites warred incessantly, and Indian tribes also fought among themselves. The massacre of Sioux warriors and families by federal soldiers at Wounded Knee in 1890 is regarded by some historians as the symbolic end of Indian presence on the frontier.

*Alignment with the recommended Scope and Sequence of the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework:
An introduction to the topic PreK-4; more detailed study at Grades 5, 8, and 11
United States history*

The Ukrainian Famine

In the 1920s, Ukrainian communists enjoyed a great deal of autonomy and Ukrainian culture and language dominated. When Stalin rose to power, Ukrainian intellectual and cultural leaders were either executed or deported, and political leaders were replaced by non-Ukrainians. Farms were forcibly collectivized, and several million peasants starved to death during the mass famine of 1932-33. Some historians believe that Stalin knowingly brought about the famine to stop nationalist ferment in the Ukrainian Republic and break the peasants' resistance to collectivization. These historians base their analysis on evidence that grain was forcibly requisitioned from the peasantry despite the protests of the Soviet government in the Ukrainian Republic.

*Alignment with the recommended Scope and Sequence of the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework:
Grades 9-10 world history.*

Cambodia and the Khmer Rouge

Under the Pol Pot regime, the revolutionary Khmer Rouge killed between one and three million Cambodians between 1975 and 1979. Educated urban Cambodians, such as doctors, engineers, and teachers, were forced to work at hard labor on collective farms in the country and families were separated. Many of these people were put in concentration camps, starved, died from widespread disease, were executed, or committed suicide.

*Alignment with the recommended Scope and Sequence of the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework:
Grades 9-10 world history.*

Bosnia/Herzegovinia and "Ethnic Cleansing"

In 1991, the former Yugoslavia was divided into Bosnia-Herzegovinia, Serbia, and Croatia. People in the region have waged intermittent civil war for a decade. In 1995, a War Crimes Tribunal, meeting at the Hague in the Netherlands, convicted Bosnian Serb leaders of crimes against humanity, including murders of Croats and Muslims by the state police force carrying out the policy of "ethnic cleansing."

Alignment with the recommended Scope and Sequence of the Massachusetts History and Social Science Framework: Grades 9-10 World history.

Rwanda

The genocide and the massacre, which claimed almost a million lives in Rwanda between April and June 1994, were the result of a variety of independent factors. Hutu – Tutsi ethnic conflict has been a feature of Rwanda's history since the late 1950s, and high population density and the migration of people across national boundaries were also important factors. During the German colonization of Rwanda and Burundi in the early 1900s, the recently coined term, "ethnic," was applied to a strict classification system that required people to carry identity cards specifying the holder's ethnic group. These laws were still in effect in 1994; they were to play an important part in identifying victims of the genocide.

*Alignment with the recommended Scope and Sequence of the Massachusetts
History and Social Science Framework:
Grades 9-10 World history.*

The Turkish American Cultural Society of New England, Inc.

Post Office Box 1308
Boston MA 02104-1308

2

a non-profit, tax exempt, charitable organization

E-mail: tacs@world.std.com

Web Site: <http://world.std.com/~tacs/>

January 19, 1999

Dr. David P. Driscoll, Interim Commissioner
Massachusetts Department of Education
350 Main Street
Malden, MA 02148

Dear Mr. Driscoll,

I am writing you regarding the Act Requiring Certain Instructions in the Public Schools of the Commonwealth, approved on August 10, 1998. It is specified in the Act that "The Board of Education shall formulate recommendations on curricular material on genocide and human rights issues, and guidelines for the teaching of such material." According to the Act, "Said material and guidelines may include, but shall not be limited to, the period of the transatlantic slave trade and the middle passage, the great hunger period in Ireland, the Armenian genocide, the holocaust, and the Mussolini fascist regime and other recognized human rights violations and genocides." The Act also states that "In formulating these recommendations, the Board of Education shall consult with practicing teachers, principals, superintendents, and curricular coordinators in the Commonwealth, as well as experts knowledgeable in genocide and human rights issues."

Whereas the Jewish Holocaust is considered tragically unique in history, the Armenian Question is not without controversy. There is no academic consensus that there was in fact a deliberate plan of genocide against the Armenians by the Ottoman Empire. No one denies that both Turks and Armenians suffered enormous tragedies during this turbulent period in history. On the other hand, telling or weighting, just one side, the Armenian side of the events does an injustice not only to the Turkish Americans, but also to the students who will be taught through the curriculum guidelines and materials which will be formulated by the Board of Education. It will be taught in classrooms where children of Turkish ancestry will be subjected to unjustified psychological and social pressure and a feeling of undeserved guilt. Surely this in no way could be deemed good pedagogy. It is also not fair for the vast majority of students with non-Turkish ancestry who would be misinformed prejudicially, and this may undermine the peaceful interaction which you would expect to find in the classrooms.

Critical thinking and the ability to examine all sides of controversial issues are vital to responsible citizenship. Since the objective study of history has the power to aid in understanding complex human relationships in the public affairs arena, it is vitally important that the Armenian Question be studied impartially. Such encompassing impartial study should include careful examination of all perspectives and issues involved in the Armenian Question.

We trust that you and other members of the Board would give a due consideration that both sides of this controversial issue be thoroughly examined before the formulation of recommendations by the Board of Education. Since the Turkish American Cultural Society of New England represents Turkish Americans, Turks, and friends of Turkey living in the New England area, we would like to be included in the process to provide input so that the guidelines and the material produced for classroom dissemination present all sides of a time in history in which there were no winners and the entire country suffered, be they Armenians, Turks or other citizens at that point in the waning days of the Ottoman Empire. Any materials that are produced must be done so that in studying this chapter in history, students are also developing critical thinking and analytical skills, not mere one sided representations that put one community against another.

We would like to offer names of eminent scholars of Turkish history in the United States such as Justin McCarthy, Cemal Kafadar, Heath Lowry, who could be called upon to serve as writers or advisors when you prepare guidelines and material on genocide and human rights issues. We also wish to offer the academic resources of the Turkish American Cultural Society of New England and other Turkish American umbrella organizations in the United States.

We hope that you would recognize the validity of our concerns and we would appreciate your early reply.

Sincerely,

Erkut Gömülü, President
The Turkish American Cultural Society of New England, Inc.

Address: The Turkish American Cultural Society of New England, Inc.
P.O. Box 1308
Boston, MA 02104-1308
E-mail: tacs@world.std.com

cc: Massachusetts Board of Education:

John Silber, Chairman, Boston
Patricia A. Crutchfield, Vice Chairperson, Southwick
Edwin J. Delattre, Boston
William K. Irwin, Jr., Wilmington
Stanley Z. Koplik, Chancellor, Board of Higher Education
James A. Peyser, Dorchester
Roberta R. Schafer, Worcester,
Abigail M. Thernstrom, Lexington
Rebecca Urbach, Falmouth

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Education

350 Main Street, Malden, Massachusetts 02148-5023 • (781) 388-3300

David P. Driscoll
Commissioner of Education (Interim)

3

January 27, 1999

Eruk Gömülü, President
The Turkish American Cultural Society of New England, Inc.
P.O. Box 1308
Boston, MA 02104-1308

Dear Mr. Gömülü:

Thank you for your recent letter and presentation during the public comment period at the January 26, 1999 Board of Education meeting regarding your concern that curriculum materials approved by the Board be objective and impartial.

As you heard at the meeting, the Board is sensitive to the complexity of the issues contained in the Massachusetts Guide to Choosing and Using Curricular Materials on Genocide and Human Rights Issues. In approving the document, the Board has directed the Department to delete Appendices D and E in the draft and to make editorial corrections and additions in accordance with the discussion that took place at the meeting.

Since the document needs to be completed and presented to the Legislature by March 1, 1999, I encourage you to submit bibliographic references that your group recommends be added to the resource section. Please submit this material to Susan Wheltle, Instruction and Curriculum Services, by February 9, 1999. If you have any questions, you may reach Ms. Wheltle at (781) 388-3300 ext. 239.

Again, thank you for your interest in this important area.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "David F. Driscoll", written over the word "Sincerely,".

David F. Driscoll
Commissioner of Education (Interim)

c: Susan Wheltle

